Hudson-Sharp Presents Customized Machine Concepts at Milan Plast 2015

ZELLIK, Belgium — April 30, 2015 — Internationally renowned as a pioneer in bag converting technology, Hudson-Sharp will exhibit its bag solutions at Plast 2015 in Milan, Italy from May 5th until May 9th in Hall 15, Booth B162. Hudson-Sharp's sales and engineering team will be present throughout the show to discuss existing and future bag converting projects.

Hudson-Sharp is a worldwide bag solution provider for the Food, Pet Food, Hygiene, and Healthcare industries, as well as for Non-Food and Industrial applications. Understanding the need for sustainable development in the production processes, Hudson-Sharp is a pioneer in introducing new technologies and machine concepts to Bag Converters with specific projects.

With more than 6,000 machines successfully installed worldwide, the features of Hudson-Sharp machinery focus on process control, automation and optimized energy consumption while using sustainable materials. These values have been the goal of the company since its beginning and the long term relationships Hudson-Sharp has maintained with customers confirm these values. Proactive involvement in customer projects gives Hudson-Sharp an edge in detecting early trends in the market and allowing them to give customers a head start in their competitive markets.

Hudson-Sharp seeks to add value for their customers by developing diversified products that have shorter production runs, quick change-over times, and specific features for the increased demand of higher tolerances. By introducing easy threading, tool-less tip gusseter, servo driven wicket punches, and adding the ability to change certain settings on the fly, Hudson-Sharp's machinery maximizes performance and quality that bring significant advantages to the customer on their competitive market.

As a pioneer in technology since 1870, Hudson-Sharp is a technologically competent, reliable, and financially stable company for customized solutions that goes the extra mile.
